Executive Summary:

- Now a days the new age society is following the nuclear family type, hence all are living independently.
- So there may be a chance the aged persons are living independently and there will be a chance they would be affected by a long-term disease like diabetes and blood pressure.
- And they have to remember the medicine for their treatment and have to take their medication on time.
- In order to prevent their health hence our application can helps to take their medication on time which reminds them by sending a reminder to the aged persons on time.
- Since there are software applications in smart watches, Most of the users don't wear watches all the time and in case of mobile all can access it easily.

Problem Statement

Now a days the new age society is following the nuclear family type hence all are living independently so there may be a chance the aged persons are living independently and there will be a chance they would be affected by a long-term disease and they have to remember the medicine for their treatment and have to take their medication on time in order to prevent their health hence our application can helps to take their medication on time which reminds them by sending a reminder to the aged persons on time.

Proposed Solution

We have proposed a solution which helps the aged persons to remind their medication on time

Uniqueness of the idea

Our Application reminds the respective person on time and also it notify's their relatives which helps in some edge cases

Bussiness model

This is the beginning stage of our application we will include more features in future like consulting doctor, medicine suggestions, hospital suggestions etc

Impact and scalability

Our Application will remind the respective person on time hence it helps to take their medication on time which improves their health in long term
